

IDA17 Results Measurement System (RMS)

October 2017

IDA17¹ Results Measurement System (RMS)

The International Development Association (IDA) is the World Bank's fund for the world's poorest countries. The World Bank Group uses the IDA Results Measurement System (IDA RMS) to track IDA operational results. The IDA RMS was introduced with IDA13 (2002) and has evolved over the years to become a robust accountability and management tool to focus on results in IDA countries. The IDA RMS is separate from the World Bank Group's Corporate Scorecard, enabling the World Bank to report to IDA donors and stakeholders on results specific to IDA countries.

The IDA17 RMS² uses a four-tiered development results framework to track results at the country level and IDA performance:

Reports long-term development outcomes and the broader context of IDA countries in which the WBG operates. Progress in Tier I indicators is not directly attributed to IDA's interventions; it is the outcome of collective efforts by countries and their development partners. Tier I measures progress that IDA-eligible countries are making on development indicators organized into six categories:

- Poverty eradication and shared prosperity goals
- Inclusive growth and private sector development
- Governance and institutional development
- Infrastructure
- Gender equality and human development.
- Climate change and environment

Tracks development results in countries supported by IDA. They include indicators that measure the overall outcomes of IDA's Country Assistance Strategies Completion Reports (CASCRs) and operations in all IDA countries. Tier 2 also tracks aggregate project output indicators under five areas:

- Governance and institutional development
- Gender equality and human development
- Vital infrastructure
- Inclusive growth and private sector development
- Climate and disaster resilience

Measures IDA's operational effectiveness of its products, notably the performance of its portfolio, results orientation of the operations (including through the use of impact evaluations), the use of country public financial management and procurement systems, and the implementation of IDA17 special themes.

Measures IDA's organizational effectiveness to respond better to clients. Specifically, Tier 4 captures indicators to track efficiency, effectiveness and value for money in achieving development results. Tier 4 includes indicators on speed and cost of operational delivery and administrative costs, use of IDA commitments dedicated to impact evaluation and other evidence-based approaches and increased statistical capacity. It also monitors IDA countries' feedback on the WBG responsiveness and staff accessibility, and collaboration with others partners, including in Fragile and Conflict States (FCSs).

² This is the last update of the IDA17 RMS. The first update of the IDA18 RMS that was approved during the IDA18 Replenishment will be available for the 2018 Annual Meetings.

⁸ Some baseline data has been adjusted due to improvements in data coverage, quality, and other changes.

⁹ Data is based on the dataset for April 2013–April 2015 and was updated with additional countries in 2016.

¹⁰ Data is updated based on the balanced set of countries with available data for the reference years (2010–2014).

¹¹ Data was never available to be reported in IDA17 RMS due to significant limitations for measurement.

¹² This year's data is from the Global Burden of Disease Study (GBD) 2015. The GBD 2015 methodology incorporates more ground monitoring data for PM2.5 in a more direct, spatially explicit manner.

¹³ No data available since the last update reported in 2016 as a result of changes from Hyogo to Sendai framework. Sendai framework data will not be reported until 2019.
